A/58/4 Forest Hill Boys' and Girls' Industrial Homes

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Lewisham Reference Library.

Introduction

The original Boys' Industrial Home was opened at 17 Rojack Road on 3 May 1873 "for the reception and industrial training of destitute boys". There were just six boys in the home in 1873. By 1875 the home included 16 Rojack Road (both these houses still survive), and the number of boys had increased to nine. The purpose of the home was to ensure that "a boy is rescued from the perils of the street, fed, clothed, housed, educated [they attended Christ Church School] and taught a trade [shoe-mending for the older boys while the younger ones made bundles of firewood to sell], and finally started in life with a fair prospect of doing well". The home was largely supported by voluntary contributions. F J Horniman was a major benefactor - he subscribed 18 guineas a year, the annual cost of supporting one child. Further support came from the Reformatory and Refuge Union. This was a national organization, founded by the great philanthropist the Earl of Shaftesbury, to offer grants and advice to homes set up to help deprived and destitute children. The Union also provided annual inspections and reports on the homes.

Admission to the home was carefully controlled. Children needed a recommendation, and the committee offered places to "those whom they know to be destitute, or the children of poverty-stricken parents". By 1881 there were 25 boys in the home. The committee felt that having the school in two houses was inefficient. Finally they found a suitable site for a new home in Perry Rise. Thomas Aldwinckle, an active member of the committee, was a young architect living at that time in Church Rise, Forest Hill. He agreed to make plans for the new home. Aldwinckle was responsible for several other local buildings including Forest Hill Pools, the old Ladywell Baths and the Girls' Industrial Home at Louise House, Dartmouth Road.

As the president of the Boys' Industrial Home the Earl of Shaftesbury laid the foundation stone on 18 June 1883. The 83 year-old Earl returned to Forest Hill on 13 May 1884 to attend the formal opening. This was clearly quite an event. The Daily Dispatch reported that the Lord Mayor of London "attended in state". Other guests included Viscount Lewisham and the Hon and Rev Canon Augustus Legge, vicar of St Bartholomew's Church. "The road from the Forest Hill station", the paper continues, "which is known as Perry Rise, was gaily decorated with bunting...a large number of residents turned out to cheer the Lord Mayor". The Home was called Shaftesbury House, in honour of its president. Shaftesbury House continued as the Boys Industrial Home until at least 1939. Early in 2000 Shaftesbury House, 67 Perry Rise was demolished.

The Girls' Industrial Home originally opened in Rojack Road on 20 July 1881. In 1891 Louise House, Dartmouth Road had been completed, also to the designs of Thomas Aldwinckle. The Girls' Industrial Home gave girls the skills needed to become domestic servants. The Girls' Home was housed in Louise House, Dartmouth Road until about 1940. After the War the building became a LCC Maternity and Child Welfare Centre and it was later taken over by Lewisham Social Services Department. In 1990 it housed a Crèche and offices.

The Homes were evacuated to Newdigate, Surrey on 1 September 1939 [A/58/4/41]. The financial records [A/58/4/38-41] show that the Boys' Home closed in August/September 1943, with the Charity appearing to be wound up in 1945. The collection includes Annual Reports, Committee minutes, accounts and records of subscribers.

Introduction

This document is an example of a method of conveying or trans fering land by a fictitious legal action. Thomas Willson starts court proceedings by claiming that 3 Messuages [properties] in Sydenham really belong to him and he has been defrauded of them by Hugh Hunt. Hugh Hunt is an imaginary person, who made `Diseissin' or dispossed of them within 30 years. The land is now held by Charles Williams. This Charles Williams denies the charge and in support vouches the warranty of Reynold Thomas and Mary his wife. Thomas Wilson then demands the land from Reynold Thomas and mary his wife, who in turn vouch to the warranty of Charles Browning. Charles Browning is an actual person, probably common crier, an official of the court, who defends his rights. Thomas Wilson then request that he can confer with Charles Browning and they leave the court together. When summond to reappear before the court only Thomas appears. Charles although summoned does not return to the court. Judgement is then found in Thomas' favour and instructed to recover the land in Sydenham from Charles Williams. Charles Williams is to recover land to an equal value from Reynold Thomas and Mary who in turnare compensated with equal value land by Charles Browning. But Browning is unable to provide any land of value leaving the actual process through all this that Charles Wiiliams conveys the property in Sydenham to Thomas Wilson. This method of conveyance was abolished by the Fines and Recoveries Act 1833.

A/58/6 Sydenham Rifle Corps: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre

The following items were received from Lewisham Reference Library

Introduction

During the first half of the 19th century there were periodic panics over the intentions of the French, and fears that they were planning to invade England. As a result of such a scare in 1859 the Government encouraged the formation of local volunteer forces, prepared to defend the realm (or, some cynics of the time suggested, the property of the wealthy) in the event of a French invasion. Sydenham and Forest Hill were not slow to respond to this patriotic call. A public meeting was held at the Dartmouth Arms on 29 June 1859. John Scott Russell (a naval architect of considerable note, who constructed the Great Eastern steamship) was in the chair. The proposal put to the meeting was: That in the present state of Europe and with the view of maintaining an imposing neutrality it is essential that the defences of the Empire should be such as to defy attack. That with this view it is desirable that a volunteer force should be enrolled & that a rifle company be raised within this district to be called the Sydenham Rifle Company.

There were just three dissenters who supported an amendment that it was not desirable to raise a Volunteer Rifle Corps. A committee was formed under the chairmanship of John Scott Russell to carry through this proposal. Other wealthy and influential local people served on the committee, including Robert von Glehn of Peak Hill, Rev Taylor Jones of Sydenham College and Edwin Clark, an engineer who built canals in Russia, docks in India and Peru, and the time-ball on the Royal Observatory at Greenwich. Before a local force could be recognised, the Government insisted that a number of conditions be met. These included an adequate and safe firing-range and secure storage for the weapons. The committee met regularly over the following months (principally at John Scott Russell's house, Westwood Lodge, or the Forester Inn, Perry Vale) to try to resolve these and other issues.

By the end of July 1859 the committee had found suitable land for their firing range. Mr William Dacres Adams had offered a strip of land between Forest Hill and Sydenham stations, on the eastern side of the railway line. The firing range followed roughly the present line of Dacres Road, from near its junction with Perry Vale to just past the junction with Inglemere Road. However, within six months Mr Adams was expressing concern at the amount of disruption caused by building the butts (banks of earth at the Inglemere Road end of the range, intended to stop stray bullets). He was also worried about the safety of the range, but the committee managed to reassure him. When completed the range was some 325 yards long.

The committee appointed a drill sergeant (a professional soldier who would train the volunteers). He demanded accommodation. The committee still needed a secure place for their weapons. They also required headquarters for the volunteers and a meeting room for themselves. They found a building that could combine all these functions. Mrs Goding offered a house on the corner of Perry Rise and Hindsley's Place, built about 1845. It would be rent- free on condition that the committee undertook certain repairs and improvements. This they accepted. The building was renamed The Armoury and, in early 1860, became the headquarters of the Sydenham Rifle Corps. It consisted of an armoury, committee rooms and accommodation for the drill sergeant. Outside, there was a drill ground. This would have been at the back of the building, on the area now covered by a large extension.

The next task was to enlist sufficient volunteers. This proved difficult, which is hardly surprising as drill practice was held three times a week, at 7 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and at 7 p.m. on Saturdays. They eventually mustered a roll of 60 volunteers. By the end of December 1860 the conditions required by the Government had been satisfied and the Sydenham Rifle Company became officially known as the 8th Kent Rifle Volunteer Corps. The committee felt a little aggrieved that they were only the 8th rifle corps in Kent. They were, in fact, the first to pass a resolution to form a volunteer corps but because of difficulties of recruitment, only 8th to gain government recognition. John Scott Russell was appointed the first Captain-Commandant of the Corps in 1859, a post he held until 1861. Life for the Rifle Volunteer was not all drill and target practice. Several members formed a dramatic club and in 1869 they gave a performance of three one-act plays at the Foresters Hall, Clyde Vale. Political circumstances changed, and interest in the volunteer corps waned. The 8th Kent Volunteer Rifle Corps was disbanded in 1871.

A/59/2 Prendergast's School, Rushey Green: Accounts

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Lewisham Reference Library

Introduction

Prendergast Grammar School was founded as a fee-paying grammar school in Rushey Green, Catford in 1890 under the will of the late Reverend Joseph Prendergast, DD (Cantab), 1791-1875, Headmaster of Colfe's School 1831-1857. His endowment made provision for a girls' grammar school and was supplemented from several quarters, including some ancient charities associated with the parish of Lewisham. The largest bequest was that of Thomas Shipman. The school crest is therefore composed of half the Prendergast family crest and half that of the Shipman family. Throughout its long history the school has benefited from its association with the Worshipful Company of Leathersellers. They are the school trustees and it is through their generosity that the school was able to move to its present excellent accommodation in 1995.

In the first half of C20th the school accepted an increasing number of scholarship girls from LCC Elementary schools. Following the Education Act 1944, the school became a maintained grammar school with voluntary aided status. In 1977 Prendergast changed from a grammar school to a comprehensive school. Prendergast's School today is a Voluntary Aided comprehensive school, the school.

The school is split over two, somewhat constricted, sites about 200 metres apart.

The upper site

In 1995, for reasons of space, the school moved to its present site following extensive refurbishment. The site had been built in 1884-5 by Charles Evans for the West Kent Grammar School, which closed in 1905 and the building was bought by the London County Council for the Brockley County Grammar School which opened in 1907. They then extended the building as the Brockley County Secondary School between 1914-18 and 1921. The Assembly Hall has an exceptional series of mural paintings executed between 1933 and 1936 by Charles Mahoney, Evelyn Dunbar, Mildred Eldridge and Violet Martin, together with stained glass panels, salvaged from the Catford site. The murals are in the Romantic and Narrative School of English painting and are considered amongst the best examples of their kind and commands fine views over London, Kent and Surrey. It is a Grade II listed building. It houses most of the classrooms and administrative offices. Adjacent to this, a new music block was neatly incorporated into the southern perimeter wall in 2005.The lower site on Adelaide Avenue Contains an assemblage of post war buildings comprising science laboratories, a sports hall, a modern languages block, an examination hall (The Leathersellers' Centre), art studios and facilities for design and technology.

Although located in the open space of Hilly Fields, this is a public park and the school cannot use it for sport. Accordingly, the sports ground is located in Bellingham, about 3km to its south.

A/59/22 Horniman Museum: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Horniman Museum, Forest Hill

Introduction

This collection contains visitor guides for the Horniman's Museum in Sydenham and various personal letters collected by the Museum.

Victorian tea trader Frederick John Horniman began collecting specimens and artefacts from around the World in the 1860's. Horniman's key mission was to bring the world to Forest Hill and he opened part of his family house to the public so they could view the riches he had collected. As the collections increased they outgrew the family home and in 1898 Horniman commissioned Charles Harrison Townsend to design a new Museum. The Museum opened in 1901 and was dedicated with the surrounding land as a free gift to the people of London by Frederick Horniman forever for their recreation instruction and enjoyment. The original collections comprised natural history specimens, cultural artefacts and musical instruments. Over the last 100 years the Museum has added significantly to the original bequest with Horniman's original collections comprising only 10% of current ethnography and musical instrument holdings. Further buildings were added to the original during the course of the last century notably in 1911 when a new building was donated by Frederick's son Emslie. In 1999 the Museum demolished some of the later additions and embarked on a Centenary Development to create a new extension and several associated spaces. This new development opened on 14 June 2002.

A/59/22/12-	Correspondence and notes of Martin Tupper Tupper, Martin Farquhar (1810–1889), poet and writer, was born at 20 Devonshire Place, Marylebone, on 17 July 1810, son of Dr Martin Tupper FRS (1780–1844), a successful London physician, and his wife, Ellin Devis Marris (d. 1847), daughter of the Lincolnshire landscape painter Robert Marris. He attended Egglesfield House, Brentford Butts, Eagle House, Brook Green, Charterhouse. Already afflicted with a bad stammer (the result, perhaps, of mistreatment at Egglesfield House), he was ill-suited for life at a large public school and at about the age of sixteen he was withdrawn from Charterhouse and sent to a succession of private tutors until his matriculation from Christ Church, Oxford on 21 May 1828. At Oxford, although his stammer precluded him from honours, Tupper read assiduously and formed what became a lifelong, if sometimes strained, friendship with W. E. Gladstone, whom in 1830 he beat for a theological prize offered by the regius professor of divinity. Following his graduation in 1832 (he proceeded MA in 1835 and DCL in 1847), Tupper's preference would have been to take orders (he had been a fervent evangelical since childhood), but his halting speech once again proved an impediment and he decided instead to enter Lincoln's Inn. On 26 November

1835, the day after he was called to the bar, Tupper married his cousin Isabelle Devis (1811–1885), the daughter of the historical painter Arthur William Devis (1762–1822). Although the first American tour perhaps marked the high point of his reputation, Tupper's popularity remained largely intact until the early 1860s, when his buoyant optimism about things in general began to seem both naïve and outdated. Increasingly he became the butt, not only of serious critics, but also of the comic press: his stately platitudes were remorselessly parodied and his name became a byword for banality. Even a second American tour in 1876–7 proved a pale shadow of the first. The civil-list pension of £120 which Gladstone procured for him in 1873 (and which he had first urged on Queen Victoria in 1869) was not only welcome but essential. Albury House was heavily mortgaged and permanently let, and in 1880 the Tuppers moved to a modest semi-detached house at 13 Cintra Park, Upper Norwood, London. Here Tupper passed his final years, still turning out verses on topical subjects which were either guyed or ignored, and working on his rambling, self-congratulatory autobiography, which appeared in 1886, shortly before he suffered a disabling stroke. He lingered on for three more years and died peacefully at his home at Cintra Park on 29 November 1889. He was buried in Albury church,

Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Lewisham Reference Library.

Introduction
These documents have been bound together in one volume. It includes a copy of Lewisham Enclosure Act, which was passed by parliament in 1810.This allowed all the common land in Lewisham to be divided amongst those who already owned land in the parish. They could then enclose their plots (i.e. fence them and prevent others trespassing) and use it as they chose, mainly for farming, later building. The result was that the landowners benefited greatly and the landless lost their access to the commons, which they had used for many centuries for grazing animals, gathering firewood, hunting, fishing, fairs and similar activities. With this is an 1812 list of those that had been allocated land under the 1810 Act. Also an 1849 document concerning the Metropolitan Sydenham Sewage system.

A/59/30 Forest Hill Provident Dispensary: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Forest Hill library

Introduction

This collection contains minute books and annual reports of the Forest Hill Provident Dispensary Forest Hill Provident Dispensary. This was founded in 1865 and was at 73 Perry Vale, Forest Hill.

Dispensaries were founded for the relief of the suffering poor. There are in London and its immediate vicinity about 35 that may be classed under the title of General Dispensaries, their purpose being to relieve the sick, infirm, and lying-in at their own houses or at the institutions. Some of these are "provident" institutions; that is to say, the relief is not wholly charitable, but a small weekly or periodical subscription is necessary to entitle a person to the benefits of attendance during a sickness.

There is a dislike among the metropolitan poor, and indeed the English poor generally, to entering a hospital, so that these dispensaries are of very great benefit, particularly the provident institutions, as they have none of the humiliating effects which charitable relief produces on some minds, while they encourage the domestic feelings and promote habits of economy and prudence. They are pretty fairly distributed throughout the metropolis; 4 being in the north, 3 in the south, 12 in the east, 8 in the west and 8 central. Of these general dispensaries 13 existed in the year 1800. In the year 1849 they relieved 141,000 patients. Their incomes amount to £14,424; from contributions, £11,470; from property, £2954.

The following items were received from Tithe Redemption Commission.

Introduction

Tithe was a tax on agricultural land originally paid to the Church of England. In 1836 an Act of Parliament decreed that all land subject to tithe should be surveyed, in order to determine the amount to be paid on each piece of land. Maps were made, with schedules showing the owners and occupiers of the land. The copy maps and schedules for Lee (1839), Lewisham (1843) and Deptford (1844) can be consulted at the Local History and Archives Centre, Lewisham.

A/59/41 Religious Census: Lewisham area

The following items were received from The Public Record Office [Now the National Archives].

Introduction
The 1851 Census of Religion was a separate census carried out at the same time as the main Census of Population. It assumed that everyone was Christian, and tried to find out what kind of Christians were most important in each district. It did this by counting how many people attended each church on the census Sunday. Our information has been considerably simplified from the original returns, which counted 35 different religious groups in England and Wales. One result is a large 'other' category. The next census of this kind was not carried out until 2001, some 150 years later. Introduction

These copies relate to the Manor of Lewisham at the time it was in the possession of the Abbot of Ghent. The Manor of Lewisham was given, with its appendages of Greenwich and Combe, by Elthruda, king Alfred's niece, to the abbey of St. Peter at Ghent, to which Lewisham then became a cell, or alien priory; which grant is said to have been confirmed by king Edgar, in 964, and by Edward the Confessor in 1044, with the addition of many privileges.

In Domesday book Lewisham is described, under the title of the possessions of the abbot of Ghent, which is:

In Grenviz hundred the abbot of Ghent holds Levesham of the King, and he held it of King Edward the Confessor; and it then was, and now is taxed at 2 sulings. The arable land is 14 carucates. In demesne there are 2 carucates, and 50 villeins, with 9 borderers, having 17 carucates. There are three servants, and 11 mills, with the rent of the socmen, amounting to 8l. 12s. Of the profit of the haven 40 shillings. There are 30 acres of meadow. Of wood, pannage sufficient for 50 hogs. The whole manor in the time of K. Edward was worth 16 pounds, and afterwards 12 pounds, and now 30 pounds.

William the Conqueror, and several of his successors, confirmed this manor and its appendages to the above abbey; with which they remained till the suppression of the alien priories throughout England, by the statute of the 2nd year of king Henry V [1389], when they became vested in the crown.

A/60/69 Northbrook Church of England School

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

Documents and other material presented to the Local History Department, Lewisham Libraries.

Introduction

In 1871 the then Earl of Northbrook donated land to St. Margaret's Parish Church to enable them to build an Infants School to cater for the fast increasing population of the area. The Baring family, which adopted the title of Northbrook, were Lords of the Manor of Lee from the mid-eighteenth century. The school adopted the Baring family motto - Probitate et Labore - Through Honesty and Work. Over the years the original school was expanded to form the Hedgley Street Junior and Infants School, becoming Northbrook School in the early years of the 20th century. "The school was opened in 1884 in the sincere conviction that religion is the basis of character, and that no education can be complete which has not a spiritual foundation." (Service of Commemoration - Silver Jubilee Celebrations 1884-1934). At the outset of the Second World War in September 1939 the school was quickly evacuated and in October 1940 a bomb almost completely destroyed the buildings. In 1953 the decision was made to build a Church of England mixed comprehensive school on the original site and Northbrook School was officially opened by Princess Margaret in December 1957. The school now comes within the Parish of the Church of The Good Shepherd and close links are maintained with the church to this day.

The following items were received from Tithe Redemption Commission

Introduction

Copy tithe maps of Lewisham, Lee and other areas
Tithe was a tax on agricultural land originally paid to the Church of England. In 1836 an Act of Parliament decreed that all land subject to tithe should be surveyed, in order to determine the amount to be paid on each piece of land. Maps were made, with schedules showing the owners and occupiers of the land. The copy maps and schedules for Lee (1839), Lewisham (1843) and Deptford (1844) can be consulted at the Centre.

Introduction
The year 1897 saw the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, by this time she had changed from an optimistic young woman and matured into a sombre widow and became the longest reigning British Monarch. 10 years earlier she had celebrated her Golden Jubilee, when Mark Twain had described her procession to a service at Westminster Abbey as ` stretched to the limit of sight in both directions'. In 1897 she again where here crowds cheering lined 6 mile procession. Locally other processions were held and this book is the notes of the possession that occurred in Lewisham.

Introduction
The Green Man Hotel, which was proved to have existed in the 17th century, was an important staging post in the Dover Road - the business of which is evident. Introduction

Sir George Grove (1820 - 1900), after receiving his education at the Clapham Grammar School, was trained to be a Civil Engineer, specialising in lighthouses. Between 1847-49 he was employed on the staff of Mr. Robert Stephenson, who was then engaged on the construction of the great tubular bridge across the Menai Straits in North Wales. In 1849, he succeeded Mr. Scott Russell as Secretary of the Society of Arts. In 1852 he became Secretary to the Crystal Palace Company - a position that he held for 21 years.
See http://www.pef.org.uk/Pages/Grove.htm
The House before becoming a private house this building served as a farm and perhaps also as an inn. It achieved some fame between 1860 and 1900 as the home of Sir George Grove, who wrote his great musical dictionary here.

Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Mr. S.W Moys J.P

Introduction
In 1824 Henry Lee leased the land from Trinity College and built this house for himself. He and his brother were brickmakers and lime merchants at Loampit Hill from 1793. The family remained in the house until 1858. James Allen, the managing director of P&O, lived here from 1861 until his death in 1874. In 1883 the name was changed to The Clock House and much later to Canada House. The house might have been used to billet Canadian troops during World War I and between the wars it fell into decay, being used by a glass bottle merchant and then a garage. During World War II it was used by builders and deteriorated further. In 1947 it was demolished and replaced by Hether Grove Estate.

From then on, the Mayows acquired most of the land between Sydenham Road and Perry Vale. They also held land in Devon and Surrey, the latter being the Nunscombe estate.

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Mrs J. Hugh-Jones.

Introduction
The Green Man was on the top of Blackheath Hill, adjacent to a bowling green, and dates back to the 17th century, was an important staging post in the Dover Road - the business of which is evident. It stood at the very top of Blackheath Hill. The building was also used as a meeting place for many official and unofficial bodies. It was later rebuilt in the 1860s and was demolished in the 1870s.

Introduction
The houses south of the church were incorporated into Chiesman's department store c.1900, and have now been demolished. This northern group (17 - 31 Lewisham High Street) survives little altered, but several of the houses have become offices. St.Stephen's Church and St.Stephan's Terrace (eight houses north of the church and six to the south) were built in 1865 in a prominent position in Lewisham High Street, close to Lewisham Station. The houses were built with commuting businessmen in mind.

A/65/24 Opening Of New Premises Of London Trustee Savings Bank In Lewisham: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from the Borough Librarian.

Introduction

The London Trustees Savings Bank opened new premises at 181 Lewisham High Street in 1965. In 1810, the Reverend Henry Duncan of Ruthwell, Dumfriesshire, set up a bank to help his poorest parishioners save for times of hardship. It was such a popular scheme that by 1818 there were 465 savings banks in Britain (including 182 in Scotland). The Trustee Savings Bank Association (TSBA) was established in 1887 to help the individual banks co-operate and to advise on matters of common concern. The 1985 TSB Act opened the way for the group to restructure in preparation for its stock market flotation in 1986. The following year saw a network of estate agencies set up, the acquisition of Hill Samuel Bank and Target Life, and the launch of Speedlink, Britain's first telephone banking system. TSB England and Wales became TSB Bank plc in 1989, and the newly named TSB Bank Scotland plc and TSB Bank Northern Ireland plc became its subsidiaries that year. In 1991 Allied Irish Banks bought TSB Bank Northern Ireland and in 1992 TSB Bank Channel Islands became a subsidiary of TSB Bank. In 1995, the merger between TSB and Lloyds Bank formed Lloyds TSB Group plc.

A/67/2Error! Bookmark not defined.6 Corbett Estate: Record

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Dr.J.Goring.

Introduction
In 1896 Archibald Cameron Corbett MP bought the 278 acres of North Park Farm, and began to build houses in Catford and Hither Green, on what is now called the Corbett estate. Between 1896 and 1913 built 3062 houses at prices ranging from £215 to £470. He persuaded the railway company to build a booking hall on the east side of the station [by financing it himself], for the benefit of his residents, and negotiated reduced-rate season tickets to target commuters. Corbett was a Scottish Presbyterian, and gave his roads Scottish names. His idea was for a `modern hygeia' for hard working and respectable people. The plan was for clean uniform housing around a grid system of roads, scattered with numerous churches but no pubs or taverns. He donated the site of St Andrew's Church. After the completion of this estate in 1910 he turned his attention to his new development at Eltham Park Estate.

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from transferred from Deptford Library

Introduction

On the 4th December 1958 in thick fog 90 people lost their lives and 176 were injured when the 4.56 p.m. express passenger train from Cannon Street to Ramsgate, via Folkestone, formed of 11 bogie coaches hauled by a "Pacific" type engine, passed the Red aspect of the Down Through colour light inner home signal of St. Johns signal box, and then after travelling 138 yards it collided at about 30 m.p.h. with the rear of the 5.18 p.m. 10-coach electric passenger train from Charing Cross to Hayes (Mid Kent line) which was standing at the Parks Bridge Junction colour light home signal. The two girders subsided at once on to the train below completing the destruction of the leading coach and crushing the second coach and the leading half of the third. About two minutes later, the 5.22 p.m. 8-coach electric train from Holborn Viaduct to Dartford, which was moving slowly on to the bridge towards a signal at Red, was stopped very promptly by the motorman when he saw the girders at an angle; this train was neither derailed nor damaged, but the leading coach was tilted.

Owing to the disorganisation of the train services by the fog, both the trains were crowded, and it is estimated that there were nearly 1,500 passengers in the electric train and about 700 in the steam train. It was inevitable in these circumstances that the casualty list was very great, and I much regret to state that 90 persons altogether lost their lives; 88 passengers and the guard of the electric train were killed outright, and one passenger died later of his injuries. Of the 89 fatalities to passengers, there is evidence that 37 occurred in the electric train and 49 in the steam train." The report into the collision and subsequent bridge collapse at Lewisham which killed 90 people, and accelerated the introduction of the Automatic Warning System (AWS) to protect against such collisions.

Introduction

The Stone company, which was based in Deptford, came into being with the above name in 1904, when the founder, Josiah Stone, died. The former company (Josiah Stone) existed since 1831. It was a manufacturing business, concerned with building, repairing and selling a variety of mechanical goods, in particular, railway equipment, such as train lighting, and for maritime uses, especially propellers. It also made parts and fittings for machinery. It sold to both domestic and foreign markets. It changed its name to Stone-Platt Crawley Ltd. The archive is now property of Stone U.K. Ltd. This archive's contents mainly relate to the period in the company's history of 1904-1968, though there are a few deeds, patents and product catalogues dating back to the nineteenth century. There are also bundles of correspondence relating to the Stone family in the middle of that century.

A/70/11 Frank Clark Hills Patent: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following item were received from Mrs E. Reeves Connor

Introduction
This collection contains letters patent of Frank Clarke Hill for improvements in gas manufacture.
Frank Clarke Hills took over the copperas works at Deptford [see A/75/27 for deed] that had closed in 1836. He had patented a process for purifying gas [See A/70/11 for patent] and made a fortune from it. It used a natural mineral which contained enough iron oxide that if porous would purify gas. Mines like Mone mine in Amlwich supplied a large amount of this mineral throughout the world. In 1840 he bought the tide mill and adjoing property that soap maker George Russell had built in East Greenwich. At this time he is referred to as an `industrial chemist' of Deptford. He developed chemicals based on gas industry waste products from which he made a large fortune and, with his brothers, owned works in Wales, Spain and elsewhere. He had also developed a steam car and patented an important piece of gearing. He went on to become a major London shipbuilder, perhaps involved with The Warrior.

Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following item were received from Mr F.W. Wapshott.

Introduction
Chislehurst Caves are a 22 mile long series of tunnels in Chislehurst in the London Borough of Bromley. They were used as air raid shelters during the Second World War, from the beginning of the aerial bombardment of London in September 1940. Quite quickly it became an underground town of some 15,000 residents. It had electric lighting, a chapel and a hospital. Shortly after VE Day the shelter was closed. This collection contains tickets to admission to the air raid shelter.

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following item were received from the Borough Librarian.

Introduction

The new Sydenham branch of the London Trustees Savings Bank was located at 59 Sydenham Road.

The London Trustees Savings Bank opened new premises at 181 Lewisham High Street in 1965. In 1810, the Reverend Henry Duncan of Ruthwell, Dumfriesshire, set up a bank to help his poorest parishioners save for times of hardship. It was such a popular scheme that by 1818 there were 465 savings banks in Britain (including 182 in Scotland). The Trustee Savings Bank Association (TSBA) was established in 1887 to help the individual banks co-operate and to advise on matters of common concern. The 1985 TSB Act opened the way for the group to restructure in preparation for its stock market flotation in 1986. The following year saw a network of estate agencies set up, the acquisition of Hill Samuel Bank and Target Life, and the launch of Speedlink, Britain's first telephone banking system. TSB England and Wales became TSB Bank plc in 1989, and the newly named TSB Bank Scotland plc and TSB Bank Northern Ireland plc became its subsidiaries that year. In 1991 Allied Irish Banks bought TSB Bank Northern Ireland and in 1992 TSB Bank Channel Islands became a subsidiary of TSB Bank. In 1995, the merger between TSB and Lloyds Bank formed Lloyds TSB Group plc.

Then the procession from Horse Guards to St Pauls. His coffin was carried by a huge carriage weighing over 18 tons, which was on show at St Paul's [1855-1980] and now at Stratfield Saye, Wellington's home. At least 1 million lined the streets. A/71/23/2	Card in memory of lives lost in sinking of Princess Alice in the Thames off Woolwich. In 1878 the SS Princess Alice sank in the Thames. It was a steam pleasure boat carrying people up and down the Thames. When on the evening of 3 September 1878 she returned to London Bridge from an earlier trip to Gravesend and Sheerness. It could carry 936 people but on that evening nearer 750 were on board when it turned into the path of the Bywell Castle, which was 4 times the size of it. The SS Princess Alice sank in 4 minutes. 100 were rescued but it soon became apparent that it had become a body recovery mission not rescue. Polution from the sewage being pumped into the river made it unpleasant work and many bodies were found inside the 2 halves of the ship when it was raised 115 people were buried without identification and nearly 600 inquests took place but the official death toll was 550. Paxton, Joseph, Sir, 1801-1865, Knight, politician, architect (including The Crystal Palace) and landscape gardener. Rockhills, Sydenham [1852 – 1865].

Hill, Thomas (1760–1840), book-collector of Sydenham, Kent [? - 1810]. In his cottage at Sydenham he held celebrated ‘Sydenham Sundays’, he used to entertain ‘literati, artists, wits and actors’ (New Monthly Magazine, 43), including John and Charles Kemble, Theodore Hook, Campbell, Edward Dubois, the Hunts, James and Horace Smith, and the comedian Charles Mathews. These hospitable parties are vividly recalled in a number of memoirs, including those of Mrs Mathews, who celebrates ‘days of unmixed pleasure’. About 1810, after losing heavily through speculation in indigo, He retired to chambers at 2 James Street, Adelphi, London. Longmans gave £3000 to £4000 for his books, which formed the basis for their Bibliotheca Anglo-poetica (1815). He caught a severe cold at Rouen and died in the Adelphi on 20 December in his 81st year, leaving Edward Dubois most of his remaining fortune, which was sold by auction on 23 April 1841.

Roberts, David (1796–1864), artist, his daughter Christine had married Henry Sanford Bicknell, the second son of the art patron Elhanan Bicknell (1788–1861) who became his close friend. Elhanan lived at Carlton House, Herne Hill [1819 – 1861] and his son Percy own Foxgrove Mansion, Beckenham. Roberts painted during his travels abroad including images of Egypt. A/73/8 Deeds: 43 Clarendon Road and Merton House, College Park

Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Mr V.H. Smith

Introduction
The College Park estate was built by the Mercer's Company in the 1860s and 1870s over the fields of a small farm that the company administered as trustees of a charity. It was one of the most significant additions to the number of middle class houses in Lewisham during that building boom. 43 Clarendon Road (now Clarendon Rise) formerly 2 Clarendon Villas, was the main artery of the new estate. Maverston Lodge, No.49 (now demolished), was built in the early 1870s.

Blackheath Motorway Action Group, fl 1960s
In the late 1960s, the G.L.C. planned to build motorways which would run through the suburbs of London. Part of the motorway was planned to be built through Blackheath. In opposition to this plan, the Blackheath Motorway Action Group and the Blackheath Society joined forces to rally public opinion to their campaign. Roland Moyle, M.P., was chairman.\

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

Introduction

This collection contains Conveyance by Samuel P Parker to Frank C Hills in trust for benefit of creditors of one half of Copperas Ground and Newman's Rose Walk Copperas Dock, St Pauls Deptford

Frank Clark Hills took over the copperas works at Deptford [see A/75/27 for deed] that had closed in 1836. He had patented a process for purifying gas [See A/70/11 for patent] and made a fortune from it. It used a natural mineral which contained enough iron oxide that if porous would purify gas. Mines like Mone mine in Amlwich supplied a large amount of this mineral throughout the world. In 1840 he bought the tide mill and adjoing property that soap maker George Russell had built in East Greenwich. At this time he is refered to as an `industrial chemist' of Deptford. He developed chemicals based on gas industry waste products from which he made a large fortune and, with his brothers, owned works in Wales, Spain and elsewhere. He had also developed a steam car and patented an important piece of gearing. He went on to become a major London shipbuilder, perhaps involved with The Warrior.

A/77/17 Newscuttings Relating to Trinity House, Deptford

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were transferred from Deptford Library.

Introduction
This collection contains printed notices, reports, and advertisements relating to Deptford, Kent and the River Thames through London.
In 1513 Henry VIII established the Corporation of Trinity House at Deptford. It was responsible for collecting pilotage and light dues on the Thames. This made it easier for larger vessels to negotiate the river. Elizabeth I insisted that the Corporation set up buoys and beacons to help ships find their way at sea. Since that time, the Corporation has been responsible for lighthouses, buoys, lightships and other navigational aids. Later they took on the role of establishing and maintaining lighthouses and other aids to navigation around the country. In 1670 Trinity house established almshouses for its members in Deptford. They were pulled down in 1877.
See http://www.ideal-homes.org.uk/lewisham/deptford/trinity-almshouses-1840.htm for picture of the almshouses.

The following items were received from

Introduction
The New Cross turnpike gate, where tolls were collected from traffic using the New Cross Road (on the route from London to Dover). An Act of Parliament in 1718 established the New Cross Turnpike Trust to look after the main road from Kent. At the top of Clifton Rise is the site of the old New Cross tollgate, which existed from 1718 to 1813. In 1819 the tollgate was moved to the junction Queen's Road and New Cross Road in Hatcham [as can be seen in the 2 pictures in the links below]. At its height the turnpike trust was responsible for almost 40 miles of roads from Bermondsey to Croydon. In 1865 the turnpike trust was abolished and the toll gate was removed.

A/78/33 Plans of the 'Red House', Deptford

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

Introduction

This collection contains a series of plans, ink and wash on paper (probably all drawn c.1787-1790 by James Arrow from designs by Henry James Arrow?) Arrow, James, fl 1787-1790, draftsman

The 'Red House', or Royal Naval victualling and supply depot, grew up alongside the Royal dockyard at Deptford in the 16th and 17th Centuries. A warehouse of red brick, known as the 'Red House' was in existence by 1639, in which year it was destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt in 1665 by Sir Henry Gunden, contractor for victualling the fleet, and remained in the hands of private contractors such as Gunden and Sir Nicholas Crispe until 1742 when a Royal Naval Victualling Yard was formally established there. There were repeated fires on the site, c.1726 and in 1748, 1755, 1758 and 1761. A considerable amount of rebuilding took place in the 1780s and most, if not all, of the plans below date from this period. Those with earlier dates are probably copies made in the 1780s. The Yard grew from 11 acres in 1742 to over 35 acres in the later 19th century; the additional land taken from the adjoining estate of the Evelyn family. It received the name 'Royal Victoria Yard' after a visit by Queen Victoria in 1858. During the 19th century it was the largest of the Home Victualling Establishments; biscuit, chocolate, mustard, pepper and other foodstuffs were manufactured on site and large supplies of clothing, food, tobacco, rum and naval stores were maintained. The Yard finally ceased operations in 1961 and the site was redeveloped by the Greater London Council for housing as the Pepys Estate. The Gates survive and the Porter's House, Lodge, Cheque House, Officer's Houses and two prominent blocks of warehouses were retained and converted into flats, a library and a sailing centre.

Introduction

This collection contains the records of the Secretary, Executive Committee, the South-Lea Sub-Area, the South Lea Area Committee and Grove Park Area. Includes minutes, reports and correspondence.

The Lewisham Residents Association was formed in 1945 just before the end of the war. It came into existence as a result of a certain "disgust" by several residents in the Borough over the way the Council was dealing with problems caused by bomb damage.

An informal meeting of 44 discontented residents in March 1945 at the Studios in Clarendon Rise, SE13, resulted in the formation of a provisional committee under the chairmanship of Mr E W Thorpe, which eventually became the Lewisham Residents Association.

Following rapid growth, the first general meeting of the Lewisham Residents Association was held in August 1945 in Davenport Hall, Catford.The Association became organised on a federal basis with several area committees which often coincided with wards. This area was served by two committees, Grove Park and South Lee.

From 1954 until ill-health forced his retirement in the early 1960s, the secretary of the LRA was Arthur Glew of 64 Rochester Way, SE3 - an address which was actually just outside the Borough. Mr Glew was a very hard-working and conscientious secretary. He died in the Miller Hospital on 10th March 1965.

The Grove Park area was always very active and was well served by the equally hard-working Mr. Minter Taylor of Marvels Lane, the area secretary since at least 1957.

Many of the area committees became dormant in the late 1950s and after the resignation of Mr. Glew the Association rapidly disintegrated. The last recorded activity of the LRA was a Grove Park area meeting on 24th May 1965 at the home of Mr. Minter Taylor. This gentleman, who worked for a shipping company until his retirement, has also left this world.

Many of the records of the LRA survived to be passed on to the Grove Park Residents Association after its formation in 1969. All the extant records - which are part of Lewisham's social history - are now being donated by the GPRA to the Borough's archives at Manor House Library, where they will shortly be available for inspection by the public.

Introduction

This collection contains administrative, financial, personal and other records of Chiltonian Ltd (biscuit manufacturers).
Chiltonian Ltd., 1933 - 1980, Lee, biscuit manufacturers and Prefecta Foods, biscuit manufacture.Chiltonian's were a biscuit manufacturers, based at Manor Lane, Lee.
The business takes its name from the maiden name of the founder's mother, Mary Chilton. The business had its origins in 1908 when Arthur Chilton King purchased Perfecta Foods which had been trading in dog biscuits and poultry foods. In 1911, their baking plant was erected near Hither Green Railway Station. The firm expanded during the Great War making biscuits for the Army. When peace came, the product range expanded into fancy biscuits. A new and larger premises was constructed at Manor Lane, Lee in 1924-1925. Up to now, it had been a partnership between Arthur, Herbert and Harold King, but in 1933 they adopted limited liability status and the company was called Chiltonian Ltd. Once again, during 1939-1945, Service contracts dominated the company's orders. New management structures, a national sales force and the introduction of newer machinery followed 1945. Uk braned tonnage peaked in 1973 and the company joined a new food group, the Dawnay Day Group. However, Dawnay Day eventually decided to concentrate on its City interests and Chiltonian became part of the Amalgamated Biscuits Group in 1980.

Introduction
The Gaumont opened in Lewisham High Street in 1932. The cinema was typical of the opulent large cinemas opened at the time, though the Gaumont far outclassed those. It was badly damaged in a fire in 1962 and later became the Odeon. The Gaumont Palace cinema dominated the junction of Loampit Vale with Lewisham High Street from 1932 to 1991. In 1991 after years of neglect it was demolished as the main road was altered.

Introduction

This collection contains photographs and photographic negatives of Elliott Bros, technical instruments manufacturers of Lewisham.

Elliott Brothers, technical instrument manufacturers of Lewisham. In 1800 William Elliott founded a business in Tash Street, Gray's Inn as a maker of drawing instruments (after serving an apprenticeship, see /8). By 1807 he had moved to a shop and workshop in High Holborn, and by 1816 he was manufacturing such items as telescopes and barometers. In 1830 he moved to 56, Strand and took his sons into partnership. The company began to manufacture instruments for surveying, for railways (e.g. steam pressure indicators) and scientific instruments of all kinds.William Elliott died in 1853 and his sons Charles and Frederick William continue the business as Elliott Bros. In the second half of the 19th century the company began manufacturing electrical instruments, and in 1893 they amalgamated with Theiler & Co, telegraph and instrument makers.In 1900 the company moved to new premises: Century Works, Connington Road, Lewisham. They began making speedometers, and instruments for ships and aircraft.In 1947 the company merged with the weighing machine manufacturers B and P Swift. A research laboratory as set up at Boreham Wood. The company began to manufacture computers and flight automation equipment (made at Rochester).In 1967 the company was taken over by G.E.C and in 1979 by Fisher Controls Ltd. In the later 1980s they were taken over by Plessey, later Siemens Plessey. About 1989 their operations were moved from Century Works to New Century Works, Marine Wharf, Plough Way, SE16. Operations on this site ceased in 1993.A list is available at the Local History Centre of the archives which were held by Fisher Controls Ltd. at Century Works in 1984. It is understood that these are now held by G.E.C. The Siemens Plessey records at Marine Wharf (other than the deposit listed below) were transferred to their office at Poole in 1993.

Copies of articles on the history of the Company are held at the Local History and Archives Centre.

Introduction

This collection contains records relating to property within the Borough of Lewisham which at one time was part of the estates owned by the Forster family. This family also owned property in Kent, Exbury and Hants.These records, which chiefly comprise of deeds to property, mainly residential, cover the period 1810-1973. They are arranged in two sections. Both sections are arranged alphabetically by street name, then by the house number, if applicable. Where several records relate to one property, chronological order is then used. Records relating to mills, farms and other categories which would not fit neatly into the above order, are to be found after the street listings. The second section, which is composed of records, which were not listed with the bulk of the archive, is arranged on identical lines. The numbers they have been allocated follow on from the numbers for the records of the same street in the first section.

Forster, Henry William, 1866-1936, 1st Baron Forster, Governor General of Australia.

As a result of being substantial landowners to the south of Lewisham, enclosure between 1810 and 1819 enabled them to acquire much of Sydenham, before proceeding to purchase land further northwards as the century progressed.

Baron Henry William Forster (1866-1936), was the last surviving male heir. His two sons had been killed in the Great War, and in memory of them, he presented Lewisham Metropolitan Council with thirteen acres of land in 1919 to form the Forster Memorial Park. On his death, these estates passed to his son in law, John William Beaumont, later 1st Baron Wardington, who had married his eldest daughter, the Hon. Dorothy Charlotte, in 1923. The estate was then administered by the Forster Estate Development Company. Subsequently, property in the Catford area, Westwood Hill, Jew's Walk, Kirkdale, amongst others, has been sold. Hence some of the properties to which these deeds relate are still held by the Forster Trust, as the Estate was renamed.

A/93/9 Portland House or Portland Wanderers Cricket Club

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from an anonymous donor who handed them in to Manor House Library.

Introduction
This collection contains minutes, club rules, accounts and fixture sheets. Portland House Cricket Club or Portland Wanderers Cricket Club was affiliated to Hatcham Liberal Club whose premises were Portland House, Queens Road, New Cross. Playing members had to be members of the Liberal Club until 1952. Some time between 1952 and 1958 the connection with the Liberal Club appears to have been dissolved and the Club became Portland Wanderers. The date of the Club's foundation is not known, but there is a mention in the minutes for 25 April 1938 of "the reformation of the Club after the Great War". After World War II the club was restarted in 1947. The club did not have its own ground, but would hire the use of a ground for a season or for individual matches.

A/94/8 Lewisham East Labour Party: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Cllr Angela Cornforth

Introduction

This collection contains the records of the Lewisham East Labour Party (formerly Lewisham South Labour Party). Most of the records were created or received by the Party Secretary, who was the linch pin of the whole organisation. The largest part of this archive is that which relates to elections, since the winning of these is the organisation's ultimate raison d'etre.

Prior to 1950, Lewisham was made up of two Parliamentary constituencies, South and East. In 1950, Lewisham was divided, for electoral purposes, into three constituencies, Lewisham North, South and West. Falling population led to this number being reduced to two in 1971, Lewisham East and West, the former being made up of wards taken from the now defunct South and North Lewisham constituencies. The ward structure is laid out below.

1950-1970
Lewisham South
Rushey Green
Culverley
St. andrew
Whitefoot
Southend
Grove Park
Bellingham
Lewisham North
Blackheath and Lewisham Village
Lewisham Park
Manor Lee
St. Mildred Lee
South Lee
Ladywell

1971 to date
Lewisham East
Blackheath and Lewisham Village
Grove Park
Lewisham Park
Manor Lee
St. andrew
St. Mildred Lee
South Lee
Southend
Whitefoot

This structure reflects the influence on the Lewisham Labour Party caused by these boundary changes. Though the date range for this archive is 1945-1993, the bulk of the records cover 1960-1974. The governing bodies of the Party are the general Council and the Executive Committee. Each usually met on a monthly basis. Presiding over each of these bodies, whose rank and file comprised of ward and trade union representatives, were the Chairman, Vice Chairman and Treasurer. The Executive Committee is a sub committee of the General Council, and its role is to recommend policy to the other. The General Council is the dominant, and larger body, and it ratifies decisions and policies passed to it by the Executive Committee.

Check condition before produce, if not sure check with Archivist if item can be produced.

The following items were received from Deptford Reference Library

Introduction
This collection contains material built up in the early and mid twentieth century by librarians in the Reference Section of Deptford Library. It mainly consists of eighteenth century deeds relating to Deptford, but also contains apprenticeship records from the nineteenth century, naval records from the seventeenth and two letters, one written by John Evelyn, one signed by Samuel Pepys. The documents appear here in the same numbered sequence as that devised by the Deptford librarians in order for ease of use.

Introduction
Catford Central Girls' School was based at Sandhurst Road for the duration of the Second World War. Two schoolmistresses and six schoolgirls ran the School Magazine Editorial Committee. The Editorial by the Headmistress discusses the impact of the war on the school, as do most of the articles. School activities are also reported and there is some non-war fiction. The Headmistress described the magazine as "a piece of educational history".

A/98/28 Addey and Stanhope School

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from the Addey and Stanhope School.

Introduction

This collection contains boxes of documents from Deptford Charity School, Dean Stanhope's School, the Addey and Stanhope Foundation and from those associated with these charitable organisations. In the original sequence of boxes, boxes 3 and 5 are missing.

The Addey and Stanhope School was formed in 1893 by to a unification of two separate schools, each of which was funded by a number of charities aimed at helping poor Deptford children.

The Dean Stanhope School was founded in about 1715 by Dean George Stanhope, Vicar of Deptford, to clothe and educate fifty children of the Deptford poor, and built by 1723. The education provided was chiefly of a practical nature, such as instruction in needlework. The school was enlarged in 1812, and in 1874, the charity changed its name to the Stanhope Foundation. It was financed partly out of the sale of sermons, donations and public subscriptions. Each subscriber was entitled to put one child into the school. Additonally, several benefactions were left in the wills of a number of Deptford residents who made provision for the local poor. These were as follows:

Robert Gransden gave land in Butt Lane where the school was built. His widow, Mary (died 1719) left a farm in Plaistow Essex, from which the rent was to be received by the charity. She also left property in London and £80.

Issac Loader gave £200, in 1714, though only half was paid.

William Hosier gave, in 1717, money for educating poor boys, which was invested.

Dr Stanhope, by will of 1727, left money for clothing and books, which was invested.

William Sherwin and William Collins, in 1752, left money to purchase land, rents from which were to be used for charity. For some reason, their benefaction was known as Gasker's Charity.

Mary Wiseman's will left £200, the interest on which was to used to clothe poor boys.

William Reynold's will of 1768, left property, the rent of which was invested for the purpose of assisting charity schools.

John Chester's will of 1783 left stock for the benefit of one poor boy each year.

Richard Philips' will of 1784 left stock for the charity school.

Dr Wilson's will of 1790 gave stock for the school and for apprenticing children.

Hannah Saunders' will of 1789 gave stock to the school.

Margaret Wood's will of 1789 gave stock for the benefit of the children of Gasker's charity.

John Addey, shipwright, made a clause in his will, proved in 1606, that money be put aside for the local poor. This money was used to buy four acres of land in the Gravel Pits of Deptford, though in 1679, this property was disposed of new properties acquired. In 1820, it was decided to build the Addey School, on Church Street, which was enlarged in 1862.

A/99/1 Deptford and Corbett Estate: Deeds

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following item were received from the Centre for Kentish Studies.

Introduction
These deeds refer to property in Deptford and on the Corbett estate. A.C. Corbett was better known as Cameron Corbett, builder of the housing estate that was named after him.

In 1896 Archibald Cameron Corbett MP bought the 278 acres of North Park Farm, and began to build houses in Catford and Hither Green, on what is now called the Corbett estate. Between 1896 and 1913 built 3062 houses at prices ranging from £215 to £470. He persuaded the railway company to build a booking hall on the east side of the station [by financing it himself], for the benefit of his residents, and negotiated reduced-rate season tickets to target commuters. Corbett was a Scottish Presbyterian, and gave his roads Scottish names. His idea was for a `modern hygeia' for hard working and respectable people. The plan was for clean uniform housing around a grid system of roads, scattered with numerous churches but no pubs or taverns. He donated the site of St Andrew's Church. After the completion of this estate in 1910 he turned his attention to his new development at Eltham Park Estate.

A/99/4/1 Petition to parliament on the slave trade [1814]

The Rector, gentlemen and other parishioners of Lee, while rejoicing in “the peace so wisely and happily restored to this country by the salutary exertions of His Majesty’s Government, cannot but see with the deepest regret and disappointment that in the recent treaty with France no provision has been made for the immediate abolition of the African Slave Trade - a trade avowedly repugnant to every moral and religious principle - but that on the contrary the consequence will be its revival on a large scale and to an indefinite extent.”

They fear that the increasing trade with Africa, and the prosperity of Africa and Great Britain, will be threatened; and that the declared intention to abolish the trade in French dominions in five years’ time will be thwarted. They ask Parliament to “adopt such measures thereon as to your Lordships may seem meet”. Signed by George Lock, Rector, and thirty-nine inhabitants.

The slave trade had been made illegal in British dominions and on British ships in 1807. The peace treaty between Great Britain and France of 1814, which followed Napoleon’s abdication, allowed France to continue to traffic in slaves In the event the treaty was negated when Napoleon returned from Elba.

A/99/16 Royal Naval School and Scholarship Fund: Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Commander Thompson, Old Royal Naval College, Greenwich

Introduction

The Royal Naval School was a charitable institution founded in 1831 to provide an education for the sons of naval and military officers in needy circumstances, with a preference for orphans of those killed on active service. The school opened in temporary premises in Camberwell in 1833 and moved to its purpose-built premises in New Cross in 1844. It moved to a new site in Eltham in 1889, and closed in 1910. The charity was converted to a scholarship fund, which was wound up in 1966. The records were sent to the Royal Naval College.

The New Cross building was bought by the Goldsmiths Company for its Technical Institute (now Goldsmiths College). The Eltham premises were sold to the School for the Sons of Missionaries, now Eltham College.

A/01/1 Roland Moyle's Campaigns against motorways

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Mr Roland Moyle.

Introduction
For Roland Moyle's parliamentary career and his other constituency correspondence see A/93/12.

These files deal with his part in campaigns against proposed motorways. The Dover Radial Route, planned by the London County Council, would have gone through Blackheath. Ringway 1 and Ringway 2 were planned by the Greater London Council in its draft Greater London Development Plan of 1969. Ringway 1 would have gone through Blackheath, Lewisham and New Cross; Ringway 2 through Grove Park, Downham and Beckenham. The Blackheath Motorways Action Group was affiliated to the London Motorways Action Group. In turn, many local residents' associations and other organisations were affiliated to B-MAG. The Grove Park Motorway Action Group was affiliated to the Homes Before Motorways Action Group (with others along the route of Ringway 2).
Revised proposals in 1972 would have moved Ringway 1 from Blackheath to Deptford. Ringways 1 and 2 were abandoned in 1973. The proposed Ringways 3 and 4 were replaced by the M25.

Introduction
Broadway Theatre opened at 496 New Cross Road Deptford on 27th December 1897. The architect Mr W. G. R. Sprague designed it with white Portland stone in free Italian style. The theatre reopened as a cinema on 4th March 1916, but closed in 1960 and was demolished in 1963. The programme has a rich period deign on the front by A. Introduction

Alan Roger Martin (1901-1974) (ARM), the solicitor and antiquary, was a lifelong resident of Blackheath. He became a member of the Greenwich and Lewisham Antiquarian Society in 1922, and was one of the co-founders of the Blackheath Society in 1937, and of the Blackheath Preservation Trust in 1938. He gave his house, 6 Eliot Place, to Morden College, and was a resident of the College for the last two years of his life.

Much of his spare time was devoted to the study of local history and the collection of antiquarian items (including many from the Leland Duncan sale) relating to Blackheath and district. These he gave to the Greenwich Local History Library before his death, and the greater part of the Martin Collection, relating to Greenwich only, or to Greenwich and Lewisham equally, remains at the Greenwich Heritage Centre, Woolwich.

In the list below the old Greenwich Local History Library references for all numbered items - a few were never numbered - have been given at the end of the entry in the form (MC …).

A/03/49 W. Howard Robinson: Collection

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Mrs Gillian Lindsay:

Introduction
W. (William) Howard Robinson was a noted representative artist and portrait painter of the early twentieth century. He was born on 3 November 1864 in Inverness-shire and attended Dulwich College from 1876 to 1882. He followed his father, William Robinson, into the Law and after a brief legal career studied Art at the Slade School under Sir Simeon Solomon. His professional career as a portrait painter began circa 1910 when his interest in the sport of fencing led him to sketch all the leading fencers of the day, these sketches were reproduced in the sporting publication "The Field" leading to further commissions for portraits with a sporting theme.

He became well-known for his sketches and portraits of figures in the sporting world such as Lord Lonsdale, Chairman of the National Sporting Club. His two best known paintings were "An Evening at the National Sporting Club" (1918) and "A Welsh Victory at the National Sporting Club" (1922). This first painting was of the boxing match between Jim Driscoll and Joe Bowker, it took Robinson four years to complete and contained details of 329 sporting celebrities. The second painting commemorated the historic boxing match between Jimmy Wilde and Joe Lynch that took place on 31 March 1919 and shows the Prince of Wales entering the ring to congratulate the victor, the first time that a member of the royal family had done so.

W. Howard Robinson also worked extensively for the society magazine "The Bystander" (which amalgamated with "The Tatler") and produced sketches on a weekly basis of debutantes and society figures. He was commissioned to paint many leading figures of the time including politicians and members of the Royal Family including King George V, the Prince of Wales (later King Edward VIII), the Duke of York (later King George VI) and Marina, Duchess of Kent. In 1927 he founded the British Empire Academy with his patron, Lord Howard de Walden, and became its Vice-chairman. Its mission was to "To promote, aid and unite all the Arts throughout the Empire".

A/04/10 Grove Park Hospital: Chaplin's Records

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Cotton & Co.

Introduction

Found in deposited archives sequence at A/80/27, but unnumbered and not part of that deposit. The Hospital was built as an overspill to Greenwich Workhouse after in the late 1890s they had been refused permission to expand. The Board of Guardians of Greenwich Union bought Spicers Meadow in 1896 for £5470 and architect Thomas Dinwiddy drew up plans. The plans were approved in 1897 (They were presented at the Paris International Exhibition in 1900 and won a Diploma of Merit). The foundation stone was laid in 1899. The Army Service Corps in the First World War used it as a mobilisation/training centre.

In 1918 it was sold to the Metropolitan Asylums Board as a hospital for patients with tuberculosis but they decided not to use it and the buildings remained empty until 1926, when it was used for patients with tuberculosis. A nurses' home was added in 1938. The hospital was bombed on 15th November 1940, 2 nurses were awarded the George Medal for rescuing patients from the debris. In 1945 the hospital became a centre for thoracic surgery. and in 1977 Grove Park Hospital became a facility for patients with mental handicap. The buildings were not 'listed' and when sold to a private contractor in 1992 much of the original constructions were demolished. Only the frontage and main administration building remains and a road named Thomas Dinwiddy Road after the architect.

A/07/31 Memories of Southend Village by Harold Hurden

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Mr S Higman

Introduction
Memories of Southend Village in the early 20th century by Harold Hurden, with pencil
Harold Hurden lived in part of a large house owned by his employers on Bromley Road, Catford. The property backed onto a large cricket pitch. Mr Hurden had come from Cornwall and at the start of the Second World War he sent his wife to Truro to live and he lived on his own until he was bombed out. He moved in with the Higman family [son the depositor] who lived in Orpington, just before Christmas 1940. The family were all evacuated for a week at this time, whilst a large UXB was defused in the back garden. Mr Hurden returned to Catford after the worst of the winter bombings and died the following summer.

Introduction
This collection contains a catalogue for H E Olby & CO, A long standing family firm of Builders Merchants. From the company logo it states that the company was founded in 1912, but the is earlier evidence that the company started trading earlier in 1905/6. At Present it is run by Hugh Edgar Olby.

Lewisham Council's Local Listing:
299 – 313, Lewisham High Street H.E. Olby Ironmongers and Built to replace older premises, this striking Art Deco showroom for the builders in the St Marys Conservation Area. Builder Merchant / No.307 – 313 merchant H.E.Olby was designed by Percy B Dannett F.S.I., F.R.I.B.A. who also designed the John Roan (Upper) School with Banister Fletcher. It was erected in 1935/1936 by the builders N.H. Gage & Sons of High Street, Kingston upon Thames. The building is occupied by the original builders merchant who built it. Although the ground floor has been altered and the shop fronts removed, the upper storeys are well preserved. The building is faced in stone to the front and north elevation with a wall of stock bricks visible to the south elevation. The windows are all regularly spaced with bronze, leaded multi-paned windows, some with bulls eye glass giving a dignified façade and maximum internal light. Simple decorative corbels to the second floor support uplighters and there is a flagpole which is centrally placed on the parapet in an Art Deco fan-style stand. The original signage also remains in part. This building makes a dramatic contribution to the streetscene and has significant local value as a landmark. Buildings of this quality and style are uncommon in Lewisham and it's provenance affords it significant local historical and architectural interest.

A/11/1 Augustus McCarthy Collection

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Linda McCarthy [daughter]. This collection includes a wartime map drawn by Augustus McCarthy showing the bombs that fell in the Sydenham and Forest Hill Area. He was a private architect and structural engineer born in 1903. He spent the war years living at 13 Kirkdale, Sydenham, with his wife. His nextdoor neighbour was the painter Ruth Beardmore]. When Linda was born in 1943 her mother took her to the country for safety but Augustus remained in London and did firewatching duties. He also inspected bomb damaged buildings in the City to establish if they could be repaired or if they were too dangerous and should be pulled down immediately. After the war he worked for the War Damage Commission helping repair houses in the Sydenham/Forest Hill area.

Introduction

The Lewisham Hippodrome was at 135 - 137 Rushey Green, Catford, music hall, which was designed by Frank Matcham, opened in 1911. With a capacity of 3,222 it was clearly a sign that Catford had reached maturity as a suburb. Until the Corbett Estate had added more than 15,000 to the population in the previous decade such a huge theatre could not have been expected to pay. Even allowing for a large potential audience at its doors, the Hippodrome struggled to survive, taking several diversions into straight drama and films before closing in 1959. It was demolished in 1960.

By 1886 it had become the Herrick Foundation School for boys, and it was later known as St Peter's College. The house was demolished in 1938 when Grover Court was built on the site.

Introduction
This collection contains items relating to the 69th and 70th season of the West Kent Cricket Club. The West Kent CC was originally formed as Prince's Plain Cricket Club, founded in 1812 with its headquarters on Bromley Common, but lost its ground in 1821 due to the enclosure of Bromley Common. The club was rescued by an offer from the Chislehurst authorities to let them establish a new ground on Chislehurst Common. In 1876, three small local clubs amalgamated and called themselves the Chislehurst Cricket Club and agreement was reached so that the two clubs shared Cricket Ground Road for the next 100 years. West Kent CC was dissolved in 1980 and the Chislehurst club, now known as the Chislehurst and West Kent Cricket Club, has sole use of the ground.

A/18/3 Lewisham Hippodrome Theatre Collection

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from Jocelyn Clasby.

Introduction
This collection contains 2 programmes for the Hippodrome Theatre, Lewisham. Lewisham Hippodrome, was at 135 - 137 Rushey Green, Catford. The photograph is c. 1912 The Hippodrome music hall, which was designed by Frank Matcham, opened in 1911. With a capacity of 3,222 it was clearly a sign that Catford had reached maturity as a suburb. Until the Corbett Estate had added more than 15,000 to the population in the previous decade such a huge theatre could not have been expected to pay its way. Even allowing for a large potential audience at its doors, the Hippodrome struggled to survive, taking several diversions into straight drama and films before closing in 1959. It was demolished in 1960.

A/18/15 Ladywell Institution Collection

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from

Introduction

This Collection contains photographs of Ladywell Institution. In 1897 work began to build Ladywell Lodge, Dressington Avenue, an infirmary for elderly poor and infirm, an innovative concept at the time, for the St Olave's (Bermondsey) Union Board of Guardians. It was built on the site of Slagrave farm, was opened in 1900 by the Prince and Princess of Wales, with 812 beds. It was located at the south of the site, with the ancillary buildings to the north. The central administration block and dining hall were flanked either side by 3 double pavilion ward blocks, the infirm, the healthy infirm and the healthy aged. The buildings were designed to provide the maximum light and space. The sexes were strictly segregated and a separate block had been built to accommodate 6 married couples. The site had its own water tower and also contained an isolation hospital, a laundry and 2 chapels, Church of England and Roman Catholic.

In 1904 St Olave's Union joined with St Margaret's to become the Bermondsey Union and it became known as the Bermondsey Institution. By 1909 it have 1,000 beds. During WW1 the Institution became the Bermondsey Military Hospital. It had 796 beds, of which 103 were for tuberculosis patients, 25 for isolation and 6 for dysentery cases. In 1929, when the Boards of Guardians were abolished, the Institution was controlled by the L.C.C., who renamed it Ladywell Institution. During WW2 a parachute mine landed in the grounds at 02.40 20 September, 1940. It did not explode, but 900 people had to be evacuated. After 1940 the L.C.C. opened a residential nursery at 82 Ladywell Road, with cots for 150 infants. The Welfare Committee of the Institution ran it until 1952, when the L.C.C.'s Children's Committee took over. It did not join the NHS but continued in use as Ladywell Lodge, a residential home for the elderly managed by the L.C.C. The following items were received from

Introduction
This collection contains 2 programmes for productions at Lewisham Hippodrome. Lewisham Hippodrome, was at 135 - 137 Rushey Green, Catford. The photograph is c. 1912 The Hippodrome music hall, which was designed by Frank Matcham, opened in 1911. With a capacity of 3,222 it was clearly a sign that Catford had reached maturity as a suburb. Until the Corbett Estate had added more than 15,000 to the population in the previous decade such a huge theatre could not have been expected to pay its way. Even allowing for a large potential audience at its doors, the Hippodrome struggled to survive, taking several diversions into straight drama and films before closing in 1959. It was demolished in 1960.

The following items were received from

Introduction

This Collection contains material relating to the Cholera Relief Fund (Deptford and Hatcham). 1854 saw an epidemic at Deptford in the New Street Frenches Fields Area, with 90 deaths from 40 – 60 houses. The houses received water from the Kent Water Works, south along the River Ravensbourne, or took their water directly from Deptford Creek, leading directly to the polluted Thames. At this time Dr John Snow was discovering the cause of the outbreak at Broad Street. By 1857 the pollution levels were rising again leading to the Great Stink of the heat wave of the summer of 1858. By this time the population of London had risen from 1 million to 2.5 million and the pollution levels were out of control. The Public Health and Local Government Acts of 1858 lead to great changes in sanitation, dealing with health issues and control of local systems.

The following items were received from

Introduction

This Collection contains a programme for the `Parkers Wedding' at the Lewisham Hippodrome. Lewisham Hippodrome, was at 135 - 137 Rushey Green, Catford. The photograph is c. 1912 The Hippodrome music hall, which was designed by Frank Matcham, opened in 1911. With a capacity of 3,222 it was clearly a sign that Catford had reached maturity as a suburb. Until the Corbett Estate had added more than 15,000 to the population in the previous decade such a huge theatre could not have been expected to pay its way. Even allowing for a large potential audience at its doors, the Hippodrome struggled to survive, taking several diversions into straight drama and films before closing in 1959. It was demolished in 1960.

Introduction

This Collection contains material relating to The Daily Universal Newspaper - "John Walter (1738/9 - 17 November 1812), founder of The Times newspaper, London, was born in London and educated at Merchant Taylors' School, Northwood. From the death of his father Richard Walter (about 1755/6), until 1781 he was engaged in a prosperous business as a coal merchant. He played a leading part in establishing a Coal Exchange in London; but shortly after 1781, when he began to occupy himself solely as an underwriter and became a member of Lloyds, he over-speculated and failed.
In 1782 he bought from one Henry Johnson a patent for a new method of printing from logotypes (i.e. founts of words or portions of words, instead of letters), and made some improvements to it. In 1784 he acquired an old printing office in Blackfriars, which formed the nucleus of the Printing-house Square of a later date, and established there his Logographic Office. At first he only undertook the printing of books, but on 1 January 1785 he started a small newspaper called The Daily Universal Register, which on reaching its 940th number on 1 January 1788 was renamed The Times.

Introduction

This Collection contains material relating to the Lewisham Hippodrome. Lewisham Hippodrome, was at 135 - 137 Rushey Green, Catford. The photograph is c. 1912 The Hippodrome music hall, which was designed by Frank Matcham, opened in 1911. With a capacity of 3,222 it was clearly a sign that Catford had reached maturity as a suburb. Until the Corbett Estate had added more than 15,000 to the population in the previous decade such a huge theatre could not have been expected to pay its way. Even allowing for a large potential audience at its doors, the Hippodrome struggled to survive, taking several diversions into straight drama and films before closing in 1959. It was demolished in 1960.

The following items were received from

Introduction
This Collection contains 1 Oversized Folio of Plans of Hither Green Cemetery. Hither Green Cemetery opened as Lee Cemetery in 1873 is a large cemetery located on Verdant Lane. The cemetery is situated between Catford, Hither Green, Grove Park and Lee. Next to Hither Green Cemetery is Lewisham Crematorium that was opened in 1956. The cemetery was designed by Francis Thorne and included two Gothic chapels - one Anglican, one for dissenters (the Dissenters' Chapel, built by William Webster, was for people belonging to nonconformist, ie: non-Anglican, churches) - and ornamental entrance gates. The original gate lodge was demolished. When the cemetery opened in 1873, it was named Lee Cemetery, although Lee's church and centre are about 1.5 miles (2.5 km) to the north of the cemetery, the land was covered by the Lee civil Parish at the time. The original cemetery occupied what is now the northernmost part of the cemetery, located on a road named Hither Green Lane, but was renamed Verndant Lane later. The cemetery expanded into a much larger southward, into lands previously occupied by the fields of a farm named Shroefield Farm.

A/18/166 Cheisman's Jubilee Bulletin Collection

Lewisham Local History and Archives Centre
Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from

Introduction

This Collection contains a copy of the Cheisman's Jubilee Bulletin. Cheisman's was a department store in Lewisham, from Granville Road to High Pavement, the site in 2018 is now occupied by the Police Station. They included household goods, furniture, fashion and removal departments and a Restaurant. The store started as Paris House 27 September 1884 on High Pavement, Lewisham. Frank and Harry Cheisman were its founder. Their father had moved from Yorkshire to New Cross where wholesale dry goods trade in the city of London. When Frank and Harry left school they were apprenticed to the Drapery Trade, including Whitley's and time in Paris and Bordeaux. When they returned their father helped them set up a business. One night one of their servants came to the father and told him Cross Brothers, Drapers, 59 High Pavement Lewisham had closed suddenly. She described the business and they were so keen they went to Lewisham immediately, despite the late hour! They spoke to the Fishmonger next door to the closed Drapers and he confirmed what the servant had to them, but gloomily he said that the trade was declining as it was moving to Lee High Road. The next day the father gave Frank and Harry half the money required for the lease and stock. They began business and called it Paris House. Their nearest competition was Collingwoods, Stronds and opposite the Obelisk, Also Matthews (which was later occupied by Sainsbury's drapery store). With their first year's profit they shop and subsequent years they bought more shops in the parade. They started with 3 assistants and 18 feet of shop front, by the time of the Jubilee they had 650 staff. They had 3 departments at first and by 1934 they had 60 departments over 4 Acres, with a 300 feet frontage.

Introduction

This Collection contains material relating to theatre programmes for Lewisham Hippodrome and Town Hall. Lewisham Hippodrome, was at 135 - 137 Rushey Green, Catford. The photograph is c. 1912 The Hippodrome music hall, which was designed by Frank Matcham, opened in 1911. With a capacity of 3,222 it was clearly a sign that Catford had reached maturity as a suburb. Until the Corbett Estate had added more than 15,000 to the population in the previous decade such a huge theatre could not have been expected to pay its way. Even allowing for a large potential audience at its doors, the Hippodrome struggled to survive, taking several diversions into straight drama and films before closing in 1959. It was demolished in 1960.

Lewisham Library, 199-201 Lewisham High Street, London SE13 6LG

The following items were received from

Introduction

This Collection contains material relating to George Engleheart (1750–1829) was one of the greatest English painters of portrait miniatures. Engleheart is generally thought to have been born in Kew, Surrey, on 26 October 1750. His father was Francis Englehart (died 1773), a German plaster modeller who emigrated to England as a child; his mother was Anne Dawney. He had seven brothers. The family name was changed to Engleheart after his father died. He married his first wife, Elizabeth Brown, in 1776; and the couple set up house in Prince's Street, Hanover Square, London. Elizabeth died in April 1779, aged only 26. Engleheart moved to 4 Hertford Street in Mayfair, London. He married his second wife, Ursula Sarah Browne in 1785; and the couple had four children: George, Nathaniel, Harry and Emma. In 1813, Engleheart retired full-time to his country house in Bedfont, near Hounslow in Middlesex. He had built the house on land he purchased in 1783, and the interiors are said to have been decorated in the fashionable neo-classical style of Robert Adam. His second wife, Ursula, died in 1817, and Engleheart soon after gave up the house and went to live with his son Nathaniel in Blackheath, then a village to the southeast of London. Engleheart died in Blackheath on 21 March 1829, and was buried at St. Anne's Church, Kew.

Introduction

This Collection contains an article from `The Builder' relating to the deodorizing of the Thames. 1854 saw an epidemic of Cholera at Deptford in the New Street Frenches Fields Area, with 90 deaths from 40 – 60 houses. The houses received water from the Kent Water Works, south along the River Ravensbourne, or took their water directly from Deptford Creek, leading directly to the polluted Thames. At this time Dr John Snow was discovering the cause of the outbreak at Broad Street. By 1857 the pollution levels were rising again leading to the Great Stink of the heat wave of the summer of 1858. By this time the population of London had risen from 1 million to 2.5 million and the pollution levels were out of control. The Public Health and Local Government Acts of 1858 lead to great changes in sanitation, dealing with health issues and control of local systems.

Introduction
This collection contains 2 brass plaques from St John's Hospital, "folders of Hospital Management Committee and items from Sister Bessie M Leggett (Sister in Emergency Department later Accident and Emergency, A & E). The Sisterhood of St John the Divine was founded in 1848 in Norfolk Street, The Strand and the Sisters undertook nursing in the Wards of King's College Hospital and Charing Cross Hospital. In 1884 these 2 hospitals decided to have their own Nursing Staff and so the Sisters to Lewisham, where they founded St John's Hospital on the edge of Blackheath. In Deptford the practiced Midwifery as Nursing Sisters of St John the Divine. Originally they were in existing buildings on Morden Hill extensions and new buildings being added later 1899 – 1911. The Hospital started with 10 beds and grew to a 7 acre site in 1948 and 112 beds, covering a wide range of Medicine and Surgery together with an Out-Patients Department. After reductions after joining the NHS they had 76 beds and were General Surgical, Orthopaedics and Gynaecological patients. With an Out-Patient's Department offering a wide range of Clinics. The Nurses home was built in 1938 and with Physiotherapy are the more modern features of the Hospital.
